

REDS CRUSH NAZI THRUST AND ROLL ON

Meandering
Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE
A big army of women in the community are rapidly winning a battle launched sometime ago and have all put the enemy to rout.

I mean the annual house-cleaning battle against the common enemy—dirt!
For weeks the battle has been going on in various households, and in not a single instance has the battle been lost, although many a woman has been weary long before the final "mopping up" was completed.
And, generally speaking, the women have found help harder to obtain than at any time in recent years, so that being short of reinforcements they have fought the common enemy all the harder, calling up the painter and the paper hanger for reserves when necessary to make the victory complete.

Well, when you go into a restaurant or other public eating place, and find a printed notice on the table regarding the amount of sugar allowed each customer, as well as the amount of tea and coffee—make the best of it—and don't growl!

That is just one of the many things we must do—and like it—during the war.

One teaspoonful of sugar for each item for which the guest is accustomed to use sugar, and not over two teaspoonsful to any guest, is the rule, as well as one serving of tea or one serving of coffee.

It is all due to the rationing of sugar and the reduction of imports of tea and coffee.

It's a good plan to remember that "you're in the army now"—the great army of civilians who must help the boys under arms win the war.

A bicycle built for two... yes, a sure 'nuff tandem... I don't know why I should have been surprised... I'd been expecting something of the sort ever since bicycling became popular with tire and car rationing... but, just the same when I saw George Renick and Bob Blackmore come pedaling serenely down South Fayette Street and turn into East Street around "Monty" Montgomery's Sinclair filling station on the corner, my mouth gaped open and my eyes batted.
A bicycle built for two was literally correct... these boys apparently had taken two bicycles and fastened them together ingeniously... they're just school kids, but they certainly know their mechanics... they had done a very neat job... but that's young America... always equal to the emergency... and something different is the spice of life.

And, about bicycles... Ace Murray, the kingfish of Good Hope, was just telling me a most fantastic story... fantastic, even in these amazing times when anything can be expected... here 'tis in brief:
A man came up the little grade and around the turn into the main stem of the village pushing a bicycle... behind plodded a woman and two little children. In front of the bank, the man straddled the seat... the woman sat on the cross bar... and gathered the smallest child in her arms... the other child climbed up on a little rack behind the man... and off went the whole family toward Lyndon with papa pedaling... no wonder the poor man had to come up the little grade into Good Hope afoot... Ace said he didn't know the family... so they must have been travelers from a far distance... for, Ace knows everyone and his dog for miles around.

PRICE CEILING LIFTED ON PROCESSED GRAIN
WASHINGTON, May 25.—(P)—Ground wheat, corn meal, hominy, malted barley, rolled hulled oats and several other processed grain products were exempted today from the universal price ceiling order when sold in packages of more than three pounds.

The products are those whose prices bear a close relationship to prices of the grains themselves and which, under the farm price provisions of the price law, are subject to less stringent control than other commodities.

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON, May 25.—(P)—Congress considered today proposals to give President Roosevelt broad authority to revamp the Selective Service system by classifying family men into groups who would be called for army duty only after the rolls of those without dependents had been exhausted.

Explaining that the Selective Service hoped to set up general classifications based on family relationship and economic dependency, Senator Johnson (D-Colo.) predicted that the Senate military affairs committee would amend a pending family allowance bill tomorrow to vest such authority in the President.

Linked with reports that an effort soon would be made to make men of 19 and 20 subject to the draft, legislation of this nature was expected to clear up the status of older men and those with dependents, who now are subject to induction at the discretion of local boards.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), who proposed that specific classifications be written into the family allowance bill, said he could be satisfied with an amendment authorizing the President to issue regulations classifying men according to age groups, family status, date of marriage and dependency.

Taft previously suggested seven classifications be set up under which young men without dependents automatically would be taken into the army first and older men with several children would be the last to go, but Johnson said Selective Service officials opposed any rigid classification.

Taft told reporters there had

Red Fliers Like Airacobras
And Tomahawks—They Are

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
WITH THE RED AIR FORCE
ON THE CENTRAL RUSSIAN
FRONT, May 25.—(P)—A crack Russian pursuit squadron defending the approaches of Moscow is flying American-made planes exclusively—and calling for more.
This squadron, containing some of the best Soviet pilots, has downed 86 enemy aircraft since the start of the war, 29 of them with American planes.
There are three types of American pursuit planes now fighting on the Russian front—the (Bell) Airacobra and the (Curtiss) Kittyhawk and Tomahawk.

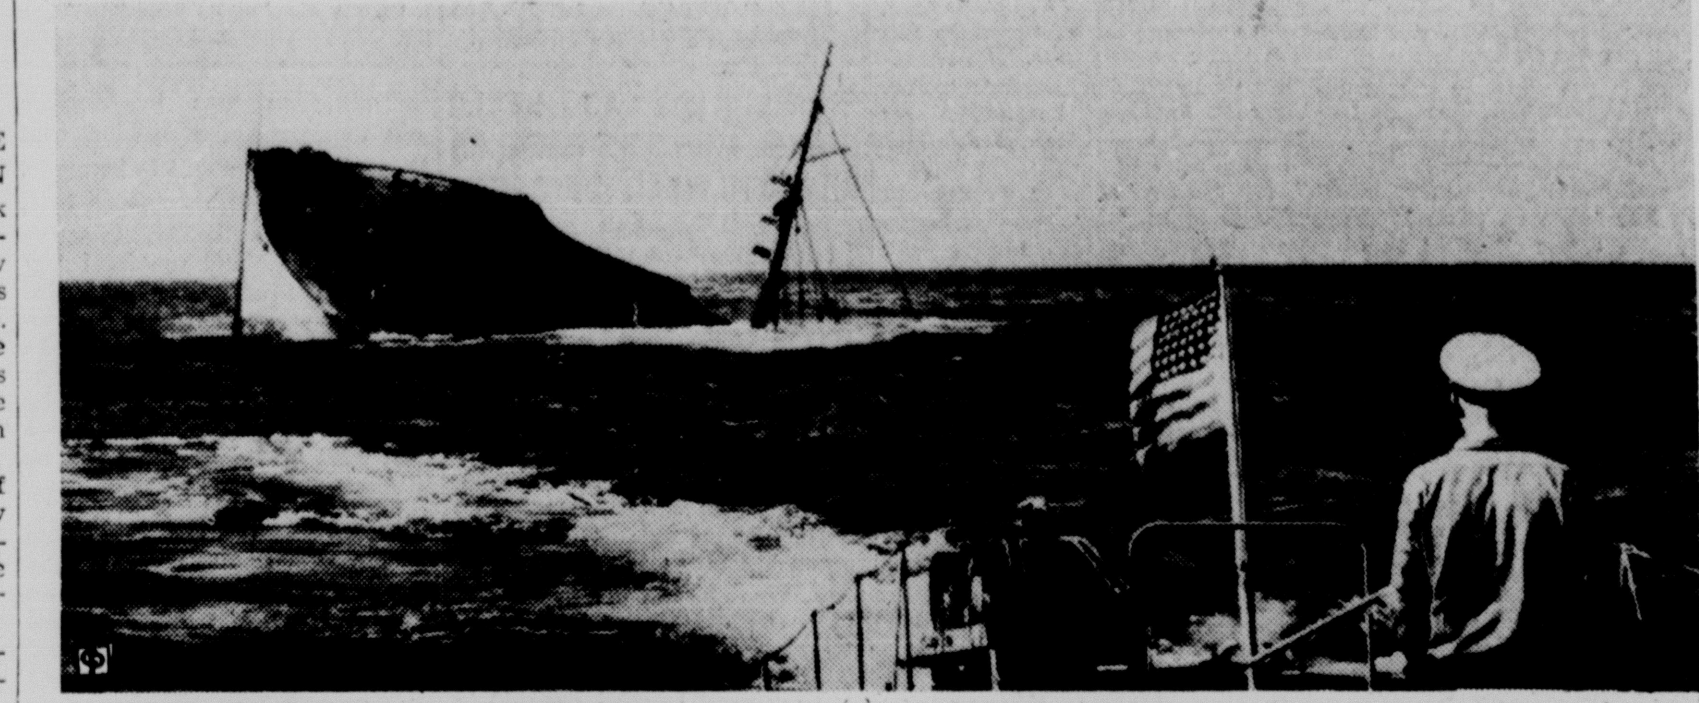

I saw them in service at an air-drome defending Moscow's approaches.
The fliers said the Airacobras, which they call Cobras, had proved their worth among the best planes fighting for Russia, especially in low-altitude combat, while Kittyhawks and Tomahawks followed in that order in their preference.

Pilots asserted that the Airacobras had outflown every German plane except a new high-altitude fighter, the Heinkel 113, which the Germans use rarely.
Fliers assigned to the American planes included Captain Evgeni Mikhailovich Gorbatyukov, 26, who was awarded Russia's highest honor, that of hero of the Soviet Union, for gallantry and heroism in air duels.

The American came out of Burma the hard way. He refused a lift from a United States Army plane because he still had a job to do.
When it became clear that withdrawal was the only course, he and a group of soldiers and native nurses started from Wuntho May 4. They made more than half of the 20-day journey afoot, hidden from aerial searchers by lush tropical forests while their food supplies dwindled. General Stilwell flew here on the last leg.

FROM WPA FUNDS IS ASKED NOW BY FDR

WASHINGTON, May 25.—(P)—Slashing approximately $185,000,000 from the total because war conditions permit it, President Roosevelt asked congress today to appropriate $280,000,000 for work relief in the year starting July 1 plus $2,767,000 for administrative expenses.

He had estimated tentatively, in his budget message to congress last January, that $465,000,000 would be needed.

The lower figure, he said in a message to the legislators, will permit an average monthly employment of about 400,000, although it is estimated that there are still some 3,000,000 unemployed.

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH
Russia's Kharkov offensive, a major factor in strategic planning on both sides of the world conflict, appeared today to be rolling forward once again, the Red army having wiped out the best the Germans could offer in the way of flank diversion.

The wedge which the Germans had driven into the Russian salient curving past Kharkov on the south had been shattered with "enormous losses" to the enemy, Moscow dispatches said, and the Russians had driven ahead once more after consolidating newly won ground.

The 14th day of battle on the Kharkov front, perhaps the most valuable of all German positions in Russia for it buttresses the Taganrog threat of the Germans to invade the Caucasus when and if they can get their own major drive underway.

The German high command, not retreating from previous claims that considerable Russian forces had been cut off in the salient flanking Kharkov, said today that the fighting south of the big Ukrainian manufacturing city had developed into a battle of encirclement.

Obviously both the Germans and Russians could not be correct in their descriptions of the battle but since communiques and the belligerents' own front line reports were the only sources of news, corroboration must await final outcome of the encounter.

CARDS BUMPED OUT OF SECOND PLACE BY REDS

Yankees Lose to Senators
But Gain Half Game When Indians' Beaten Twice

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
(By the Associated Press)

If you're one of those skeptical citizens who figured the Cincinnati Reds were in for a rough summer because their pitching has gone to pot, you'd better get ready to change your outlook, which is exactly what the Reds are doing.

With seventh place in the National League staring them in the face, the Reds called on Johnny Vander Meer and Ray Starr for a bit of hurling against the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday and what that pair did to the pre-season favorites was enough to make future opponents shudder.

Vander Meer tossed a five-hitter in the opening game and singled in the deciding run for a 3-2 decision. Then Starr blanked the Red Birds on three hits for a 2-0 win in the nightcap.

The double triumph knocked the cards out of second place and hoisted Cincinnati into the thick of a battle royal that now finds five teams clustered within three games of the runner-up spot. The Reds are in sixth place.

The upset at St. Louis wasn't the only surprise of yesterday's major league program.

Yanks Lose out Gain
The New York Yankees lost a 9-8 verdict to the Washington Senators but added half a game to their American League lead because the St. Louis Browns swept a doubleheader from the second-place Cleveland Indians by scores of 3 to 2 and 4 to 1.

The Boston Red Sox finally beat the Philadelphia Athletics, after dropping the first game of the afternoon, but slipped into fourth place in the American League as the Detroit Tigers whipped the Chicago White Sox twice and took over third place.

The Boston Braves divided their bargain with the Philadelphia Phils. The Phils won the first game 3-2 in 11 innings; Boston the second 6-3. The Chicago Cubs surprised everybody, including themselves, by pinning a double defeat on the Pittsburgh Pirates, 7-5 and 11-4.

The Detroit Tigers collected a total of 25 hits in crushing the White Sox, 6-2 and 14-0. Rudy York tied an American League record by scoring five runs in as many times at bat.

Manager Joe Cronin returned to the Red Sox lineup and drove in two runs, one a homer, as Boston downed the Athletics, 6-5, in the second game after losing the first by the same score.

While all that was going on,

Class B Track-Field Title Kept by O. S. & S. O. Home

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, May 25—(AP)—Ohio's high school track and field crowns rested jauntily on familiar brows today, but the baseball, golf and tennis titles were scattered among new victors.

Cleveland East Tech's Carpenters grabbed the class A cinder laurels for the third straight time in Saturday's 35th annual spring sports carnival with the Cadets, of Xenia's O.S. & S.O. Home did the same in class B.

And the chances are that the two schools will have the titles for some time, for Saturday's meet probably was the last until the war ends.

The baseball champions went to Tiltonville in class A and Reading in Class B; Sylvania copped the golf team title after a playoff with North College Hill.

The Brooklyn Dodgers—apparently tired of losing at the Polo Grounds—handed the New York Giants their first shutout of the year, 6-0, to salvage the final game of the series and snap a three-game losing streak.

Swarms of Gnats Put Golfers in Meet Backwards

ATLANTIC CITY, May 25—(AP)—The boys started out backwards today in the professional golfers association championships at the Sea View Club.

Swarms of pesky gnats near wooded sections of the two-course layout forced officials to re-route the players in the first 18 holes of today's qualifying round so that the "back" nine holes came up first.

Thousands of programs and cards showing the yardage, par, etc., of the championship course were declared officially to be in error.

Corp. Vic Ghezzi, the defending champion, and Byron Nelson of Toledo, were favorites in the field of about 100.

By starting early rounds on the "back" nine, officials figured the gnats would disappear as the day grew warmer and the pros approached the wooded habitat of the bothersome bugs.

Only Double Win In AA Sunday Is Taken by Millers

(By The Associated Press)

All American Association clubs—except Minneapolis and Toledo—traded victories in an all-doubleheader program yesterday. Minneapolis beat Toledo twice, 2-1, and 7-2. Harry Kelley victimized the Mud Hens on a five-hitter. Van Lingle Mungo, erstwhile major leaguer hurled a six-hitter to win the nightcap.

Four blows were all the St. Paul Saints could get off Bill Crouch as Columbus won the opener, 5-1. Vedic Himsel gave the Birds only four hits as St. Paul took the afterpiece, 3-0.

Kansas City's Tommy Reis hurled a three-hitter to beat Louisville, 8-1. Bill Sayles of the Colonels shackled the Blues to four blows, and won, 3-0.

Milwaukee stemmed an Indianapolis rally to win the opener, 4-3, but Gabby Hartnett's boys fashioned their second win in the last 10 games by taking the nightcap, 8-1.

Reds Win 2 From Cards; Good Pitching

CINCINNATI, May 25—(AP)—

Their first night game gives the Cincinnati Reds a chance to-night to tumble the skidding Pittsburgh Pirates into the second division for the first time this season.

Twice-beaten Paul Derringer or Elmer Riddle probably will hurl against Max Butcher to-night.

The Reds blanked the Cards in both halves of a twin bill before leaving here two weeks ago, with Ray Starr getting one shutout. Yesterday at Sportsman's park the Redlegs took their second doubleheader, and Starr pitched a 2-0 victory after Johnny Vander Meer won the first one 3-2.

Vandy fanned nine Cards and gave only five hits and three walks. Eddie Joost's sixth-inning homer after Rollie Hemsley's single brought the Reds their first runs, and Vandy broke a 2-2 tie in the ninth by singling after Rookie shortstop Bob Blattner made a three-base wild throw on Gerald Walker's slow roller.

In the nightcap Harry Gumbert and Starr each allowed one man to reach second in the first five innings; but in the sixth the Reds bunched singles by Joost and Rookie Max Marshall with Lonnie Frey's double in between two score twice. Starr gave only three safeties in winning his fifth against one defeat.

LOANS to BUSINESS Girls

I was surprised to learn that an employed woman, as well as a man, was entitled to secure extra money for clothes, past due bills and the many things for which we require extra funds. The details are quickly arranged in a special department for women — by a woman — and no credit inquiries are made of friends or employer. Repayments made in budgeted amounts. Girls in average positions may easily handle a loan of $100. Applications may be made in person or by phone.

Just think . . . it would take about three weeks, counting as fast as you could 24 hours a day, just to count up to a million.

I read in the paper the other day that the beer industry pays more than a million dollars a day in taxes . . . Federal, State and local. Every day . . . more than a million dollars.

I guess the government is glad to get that help these days, what with a war to win and pay for.

Of course, not all of that beer tax money goes to the Federal government. Quite a lot of it goes to the States and is used for such useful purposes as public health, emergency relief, old age assistance, education and public welfare.

Farmers surely ought to like the beer industry, too, from what I

Have you ever thought how much a million dollars really is? Sure is an awful lot of nice things a fellow could do with a million dollars . . . if he had it. A million dollars is a lot of money.

Just think . . . it would take about three weeks, counting as fast as you could 24 hours a day, just to count up to a million.

I read in the paper the other day that the beer industry pays more than a million dollars a day in taxes . . . Federal, State and local. Every day . . . more than a million dollars.

I guess the government is glad to get that help these days, what with a war to win and pay for.

Farmers surely ought to like the beer industry, too, from what I

Back around '33 and '34, when the tough old depression was hitting all of us pretty hard, farmers were certainly glad to sell those extra crops that beer bought from them. And come to think of it, when beer came back it made lots of new jobs for plenty of other people, too. City folks and country folks both.

If I hadn't gone in for this writing business, I think I'd like to have tried my hand at the brewing business.

I'd like to be making a fine tasting beverage that helps the public treasuries so much and that people can rightly call the "beverage of moderation." That moderation incidentally is another of the fine things about beer.

CHANGING CONDITIONS

A lot of us here in Washington C. H. and Fayette County have been compelled to change our ideas and our routine manner of living by changed conditions in the last few months. The same is true, only more so, in many other sections of the country.

Approximately a year ago most people went overboard, in the desire to be cheerful, and promised there would be no gasoline shortage in this country.

We argued the matter learnedly, starting from the fact that we alone of all the great nations possess more petroleum and more refining capacity than we and our Allies could use.

Something tells us we were wrong. For 17 states and the District of Columbia there is a very distinct shortage of motor fuel, and the rest of the country probably will not escape.

About the same time we were certain, but the notion was too silly to dignify with even passing mention, that the United States never would face a troublesome food shortage.

The reasoning was similar to that in the case of gasoline.

Well, now we're drinking coffee with only one lump of sugar. Restaurants are refusing second cups to patrons. Pepper and paprika are rationed to the trade. Bananas are getting expensive, and the fruiterer wonders whether there will be any soon. Tea is on the way out. Probably so is pineapple.

All these, of course, are imported. The premium upon shipping space makes them hard to get.

Just to clear our conscience of the bad advice on gasoline, however, let us record today that we are going to meet up soon with scarcities in a lot of foodstuffs that do not have to be brought into the United States by sea—things that we raise on our own mainland in huge quantities.

We shall find these foods scarce for two simple reasons that didn't occur to us a year ago.

First, because the army, the navy and war manufacture are drafting our manpower so heavily that many farmers can not get enough help to plant, cultivate and harvest the crops.

Second, because our railroads are coming close to the limits of their carrying capacity.

Not long since, we were worrying about the uneconomic competition of paralleling transcontinental lines, with excess equipment eating its head off in capital charges.

Now we're devising all sorts of makeshifts to enable the available equipment to haul more raw materials, more

Washington at a Glance

About 90 percent of the reports we get from the world's various war areas can't possibly mean much to the average reader.

For one thing, they conflict depending on which sire emits 'em. We may have a broad general idea of what's going on, on a large scale, but accounts are too mixed up to make sense in detail. Illustratively, it's obvious that the Nazis must be having serious trouble on their Russian front, or they wouldn't have been tied up there so long. The results of specific engagements are a mere matter of guesswork, though, to folk as far away as we are.

We never even heard of the towns around which a lot of the fighting's raging. Their names don't figure in any gazetteer. No modern map indicates 'em.

Suppose we were pulling off a war in this country and we were to broadcast information concerning the outcome of a fierce encounter in the outskirts of some little Podunk, consisting of one general store, half a block of houses in each direction from the main crossroads, a lone church and 214 population. How much significance would that victory or defeat have to listeners in remote parts of Europe or Asia or Madagascar—people without the slightest notion of the burg's geography; unable even correctly to pronounce its name, "Podunk?"

ADRIAN, Mich.—(P)—Mrs. Adam Johnston has obtained a sugar rationing card for her polly, a fastidious parrot, after explaining to a rationing board that it was necessary for both the family's peace of mind and the bird's health.

Polly's peculiarities include a dislike for cookies, candy and water but insistence on coffee three times daily—with sugar.

The rationing board granted Polly a card for one pound of sugar a month under the "pet provision" of the rationing order.

GOLDSBORO, N. C.—(P)—Z. M. L. Jeffreys, 85-year-old Goldsboro business man, saw his first motion picture but it required a special event to make him break his record.

The occasion was a private showing in a local theater of the film, "I Married an Angel," in which his granddaughter, Ann Jeffreys, has a role.

BOULDER, Colo.—(P)—The keeper of the mascots at Colorado University says he's entitled to the last laugh on whoever stole "Buffle," the CU buffalo mascot, and took him to Fort Collins to parade on College Day with Colorado State College students.

"With feed at the high price of $17 a ton, it cost them a pretty penny to keep Buffle until he was sent back to us, and it saved us dough on our feed bill," said the keeper.

Those who are celebrating birthdays today are very emotional people, sensitive to praise and blame, and easily irked by failure and obstacles. They should develop poise. During the next year remarkably pleasant surprises and gains will come to them, probably through elderly relatives, strangers and property. Much happiness will also be experienced, but there will be some trouble through legal affairs or misrepresentation. Soon, the movement of foodstuffs will be regulated strictly so they will not impede the movement of military material. Then we shall find less variety on grocers' shelves.

But—and this is the important thing—we can still be certain that we are not going to face starvation or malnutrition. At that point, war freight will give way to foodstuffs.

Why? Merely because only a properly fed nation can meet adequately the production demands that will save democracy.

Many Are Hamlets

That's the kind of wee hamlets we see and hear mentioned in connection with the scrapping in the Caucasus, Burma and similar far-off areas.

Many years ago, in the course of one of South America's wars, an internationally decisive rook-occurred in the vicinity of a teeny-weeny settlement, on the edge of which I lived a couple of generations later. Consequently I learned of the affair, five or six decades belatedly. It was known as the Battle of Empalme Villa Constitucion—meaning Constitution City Junction. It was important, too, locally. But I'll bet that, in its day, we Yankees understood its consequence fully as little as we understand the Nazi-Russian and Jap-Chinese particulars in our 1940's.

But getting up to date—It happens that I'm familiar with approximately half a dozen words in Chinese.

One of 'em is "shan."

O. K. You've read about Jap-Chinese activities in the "shan states."

Seeking enlightenment, I've asked a number of our publicity dispensers. "What, please, do you mean by the 'shan states'?"

To this query, the publicities have answered, pityingly, because of my ignorance. "We mean the states, or provinces, that the Shan mountains criss-cross."

Well, shan is Chinese for mountains.

To refer to the Shan mountains is equivalent to saying, the "mountain mountains."

It's like failing to draw a distinction between the Alleghenies and the Rockies.

Wide Room for Error

In eastern China is the Khingan Shan. Twelve or fifteen hundred miles to the westward is the Kunlun Shan. There's quite a bit of room for inaccuracies of reckonings if both these shans are regarded as one and the same range.

The Chinese recognize the difference.

They have two provinces—Shantung and Shansi.

You see 'em differentiated. "Tung" means east. "Shan" means west—west of the mountains. This refers to the Khingan Shan. The Kunluns are on the western border; therefore don't divide in two.

Time is all shot full of holes like-wise.

Things have happened tomorrow, over on our other north-and-south hemisphere, that aren't of record until our day.

Nervous System Faces Dangers in Wartime

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ALL THE BOOKS and medical articles which come out of England on the subject of the diseases of the civil population in war time stress the fact that the greatest danger is to the nervous system. "The war of nerves" is a very accurate designation of the situation.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

It is possible for the nervous system to go to pieces in various ways as a result of the stresses of war events. Of course, a person may have a nervous system perfectly well geared to handle the average, ordinary tasks. Yet some may go entirely to pieces if some extraneous event is precipitated into the routine. If this extraneous event should be something so sudden and drastic as a bomb bursting in front of the house and tearing away the front of the house, or the sudden news of the death of a son in service, it is not surprising that it might make a mental derelict of the person permanently.

Mental Dereliction

What is the nature of this mental dereliction? One thing is that the individual may withdraw into himself and divorce the outside world from his consciousness and lapse into a state of inarticulate melancholia, or in the case of young people, the condition known as dementia praecox.

Another natural thing is for them to try to forget the event, and in doing so, they may by a process of suggestion, forget something else which is a part of themselves. This is the condition which is known as hysteria. The best definition I have heard of the psychological condition of a patient with hysteria is that it is a form of loss of memory. One of the major symptoms of hysteria is the divided personality.

These Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde individuals are not at all a product of Stevenson's imagination. There are plenty of real examples in which an individual has a split personality so that some time he is Mr. A and other times he is Mr.

B. It does not necessarily follow that, as in the cases of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, one personality is all good and one personality is all bad, but that while he is Mr. A he forgets all about Mr. B. Sometimes, curiously enough, when A finds that his bank account is overdrawn, he says perfectly rationally, "B did that," as if he were talking about an entirely different person.

Symptoms of Hysteria

All the symptoms of hysteria, such as constriction of the visual fields, the paralysis and the tremors can be explained on the basis of a form of forgetfulness. For instance, one symptom of hysteria is numbness. Now, of course, numbness or anesthesia may occur to the skin due to an injury to a nerve, but anesthesia of the hand, if due to a nerve injury, involves only that one and one-half fingers on one side or one and one-half fingers on the other side and the anesthesia extends up the arm.

Hysterical anesthesia of the hand does not follow this pattern, but the anesthesia stops in a definite ring around the wrist. The hysterical person has forgotten the mental concept of the hand. Differential diagnosis between organic and functional disease can be made in this way.

So if a person says to you, "You have forgotten yourself," he really is saying, "You are hysterical," and it may happen in war time.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. S.—What fruit juices are advisable to drink for one that has gall bladder trouble and arthritis in the hands. I was advised to cook grape fruit rinds and drink the juice.

Answer: Any fruit juices are good for both these conditions. I certainly do not advise grape fruit rinds, however, as the rind has very little nutritive value compared to the inside of the fruit.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO
TOMMY supposed, since things did seem to be perking up, with Tibby suddenly, unaccountably being nice to him, that he ought to be willing to continue to let Steena manage her campaign. If she had a plan, however, he wished she would tell him what it was. "Why not let me in on it?" he suggested. Steena was evasive, she said, as she had before, just to leave everything to her. She assured him that if he did, everything would work out smoothly for each of them.

Tommy had to be satisfied with that, eager to be off, keyed to fever pitch. He wanted to race to the finish, which, of course, was Tibby. He wanted to clear matters up with her.

But he supposed that Steena, being so clever, knew best. He did not really believe that Tibby was jealous just because he had been sending Steena flowers and pretending to give her a rush. He supposed, rather, that Tibby wondered what had come over him, why he was behaving so unnaturally. Still the fact remained that Tib had changed, that she had gone out of her way to be nice to him. He felt he ought to show her, by some small gesture, that he appreciated that, how much it meant to him.

The next time the florist's boy delivered flowers there were two boxes, the usual long one with red roses addressed to Steena, and a smaller one addressed to Miss Elizabeth Lane. These last Tommy had paid for himself, because naturally he did not want to charge them to Steena's account.

"Violets!" Tibby exclaimed, lifting the fragrant, dewy blossoms from waxed paper. "Imagine violets at this time of year!" They reminded her of the springs she had gone walking with Tommy in the woods back home in search of the first wild flowers. Was that why he had sent them? To remind her of those other springs, to tell her that they might come again one day, that everything, even friendship, was not over between them?

"Wasn't it nice of Tommy?" Steena said, although she did not think it nice of him at all, not when he had promised to leave everything up to her. "I told him I was sure you liked violets," she added. That was only a very white fib; Tibby could draw her own conclusions from it, however. Everything was fair in the game Steena had to play.

The stars in Tibby's dark eyes faded; the brief lift of happiness left her heart. If Steena had told Tommy to send the violets, as she must if she had suggested what flowers to send, they did not have any meaning.

"You see," Steena hurried on, since this seemed an excellent opening if she were to try to carry out the plan she had, it's all rather mixed up, you and Tommy having been such friends, but you know you said, Tibby, that you didn't mind if I went out with him. I hope you won't mind what I'm going to tell you now." Steena's plan was still a bit vague, but she knew the time had come to do something drastic, to stir Wayne up and to make Tibby realize it was Tommy she apparently cared for.

"I shan't mind," Tibby said. She put the violets back in their waxed paper.

"Of course," Steena said, still speaking so that Tibby could put what construction she wished on the words, "Tommy hasn't actually asked me . . . yet. But I just wanted to be sure you wouldn't feel badly in case he does." Steena dropped her long lashes over her narrowed green eyes, but she could see that there were no stars in Tibby's dark ones now. "A girl always KNOWS, you know," she added.

Tibby put the lid back on the box. The violets would die if they were not put in water, but what did that matter? It was odd, but it seemed as if nothing ever would matter very much again. "I shan't feel badly," Tibby said. How could you, when you felt as if you never would feel anything any more? "I hope," she added, "that you both will be very happy if Tommy does ask you to marry him, Steena."

That was the proper thing to say, wasn't it? Steena had said that a girl always knew, meaning her own heart, her answer, as well as when a man had lost his heart to her. Steena had had so much experience in affairs of the heart that she ought to know all right.

"Thank you for saying that," Steena said. She meant that, for now she knew Tibby did care for Tommy, even if Tibby did not know it herself. Again she told herself that it was not her fault if Tibby jumped at the wrong conclusions instead of the right ones. She was not at all sure that Tommy would approve of her method, but he ought to be mighty well pleased with the result. "I promise you you'll be the first to know when it happens," she said.

Steena hoped that Wayne would react as well. If he thought she was considering marrying someone else, he would realize he would have to do something to put a stop to it. He would HAVE to make his gift a diamond solitaire, although Wayne might not be as easily misled as Tibby by a few vague hints. Steena might have to think up some way to convince him thoroughly.

Her plan was fairly well formulated now, as well as started, like a ball that would gather momentum as it ran down hill. All Steena had to do was to give it a little push.

Well, Tibby told herself, that's that! It had not been any use for her to make one last attempt to be nice to Tommy, to regain the old familiar footing. She knew now it never could be regained, certainly not if Tommy and Steena should become engaged. It had not taken him long, she reflected, to get over the old love and onto the new. Maybe that was why she felt as she did about it, as sort of hurt and bewildered and as if it could not possibly come true.

Of course it could. It would be a very good thing in many ways if it happened. As she had thought before this, it would be a good thing for Tommy to marry someone with money of her own, with the right connections. Those were valuable assets for a young doctor to consider in choosing a wife. Tommy had not thought of them when he had asked Tibby to marry him—oh, how long ago that seemed! He would, no doubt, if he asked Steena, although maybe those were not what would count with him, either. Maybe this time Tommy, in proposing to a girl, would be certain, so that he would not have to withdraw his proposal right away.

It would be a good thing for Steena, as well. If she married Tommy, it would be for love, not for the millions that he did not have. Maybe Steena had discovered that love mattered most, although that did not seem like Steena. Marg had said that Tommy had "everything," since he was handsome and honest and clean. Tibby hoped that Steena would appreciate all that.

Love certainly changed things. It changed everything for Tibby, even the idea that Tommy might ask Steena to marry him. She did not realize that she was being femininely inconsistent, because Tibby herself was considering becoming engaged to someone else, too. At least she had promised Wayne she would let him know as soon as she could, but that seemed different, somehow.

Tommy would not care now if Tibby married a man too old and with too much money. It would not make a dent in him even. Steena would not mind, either, although she had so frankly admitted that she had hoped to land Wayne and his millions for herself.

There seemed no reason why Tibby should not give Wayne the answer he wanted. He had said it did not matter whether she was sure she loved him or not.

She was going out with him tonight. She supposed she was as sure now as she ever would be. It was silly for her to feel so upset, so sort of weepy, as if what she wanted most was a good old-fashioned cry. Maybe every girl felt like that when she finally reached an important decision.

Veteran Pilot Admires Modern Fliers

By WENDELL WEBB

(Wide World News Service)

HONOLULU, Col. Albert F. Hegenberger, one of the two men who made the first flight from the mainland to Hawaii, is convinced it's tougher to become a good pilot in these days of a hundred safeguards than it was when an airplane was a cross between a wire fence and a piano box.

"I've a world of admiration for these boys of ours today," he says.

"You see, when I was a youngster, we kind of grew up with planes. We developed as they did, and we learned as we went along.

"But now a young chap has to swing right into a modern and necessarily complicated piece of machinery, and he has a job on his hands. Complex military problems have compelled advances which take real skill to assimilate.

The chunky, black-haired colonel, 46-year-old native of Boston, Mass., should know what he's talking about—he's been flying for 25 years. He's in Hawaii as executive officer to Brig. Gen. Willis H. Haie, chief of the Hawaiian bomber command.

And he's certain "American fliers and American equipment are tops."

It was on June 28, 1922, that two army lieutenants—Hegenberger and Lester Maitland, also now a colonel—took off from Oakland, Calif., to conquer the 2400 miles of ocean which now are a crucial sector of west coast defense. They landed here the next day, in their rocket plane, with three 250-horsepower engines, averaged around 100 miles an hour.

Colonel Hegenberger was reluctant to say what he thought might be a comparable flight today, in the light of modern equipment—"You have to use a globe now instead of a map," he grinned.

He admitted, however, that a flight from the mainland to China at the present time probably would put no more strain on the imagination or on prevailing airplanes than did the now-routine Hawaiian hop 14 years ago.

It was not until last December that Colonel Hegenberger again piloted a ship over the same route. He flew an army bomber from California—and if plans hadn't been changed at the last minute he would have been on the flight which barged right into the Japanese assault here December 7.

"It was just like riding in a rocking chair," he commented. "Some one else, or something else, was doing all the work for me." But he made it clear he wasn't minimizing the difficulty of learning to handle planes.

The colonel, who holds the distinguished flying cross for his pioneer flight and an oak leaf cluster for his system of blind flying, still keeps his hand in piloting, despite his desk job. He adds frequently to his more than 4,000 hours of flying time by taking off on the Hawaiian dawn patrol.

His wife and daughter, Geraldine, 14, are in Washington, D. C. One son, Albert, 21, is at West Point and the other son, Robert, 17, is a high school senior here. Both boys have flown alone and aspire to be rated pilots.

Annual Cecilian Concert Given by Club Chorus And Assisting Artists

Large Chorus Capably Directed by Mrs. Otis B. Core And Miss Betty Peterson, Guest Pianist

The annual spring concert of the Cecilian chorus was staged at the First Baptist Church on Friday evening, with a most appreciative audience attending.

The auditorium of the church was lovely in its numerous bouquets of spring flowers effectively arranged, lending fragrance to the spring evening.

The plans for the entire evening were most capably handled, and had been planned by Mrs. G. B. Vance and Mrs. Leonard N. Korn.

Welcoming the guests at the door were Miss Marian Christopher and Mrs. George Pensyl, who acted as ushers.

Following the opening number, "The Star Spangled Banner," by the chorus and audience, Mrs. M. Grove Davis, the president, gave a most cordial welcome to those present.

The chorus had been capably directed by Mrs. Otis B. Core, and showed extensive praise worthy training.

Miss Betty Peterson was the guest artist for the evening, and played beautifully the piano solo, "The Shepherdess of Sleep"—Rachmanioff Op. 14, No. 11, and "The Sun Worshippers" an Indian melody. These were two very difficult piano selections, and were artistically rendered.

Another delightful and pretty number was Brahms' "Valse in A Flat" by Miss Margaret Gibson, played as offertory.

The chorus group included Mrs. Robert Aughinbaugh, Mrs. Leonard R. Korn, Mrs. Paul Fitzwater, Miss Golda Cummings, Mrs. Fred Enslin, Miss Lillian Tevens, Mrs. M. Grove Davis, Miss Ralphine Durham, Mrs. Ira Barchet, Mrs. Lamorne Everhart, Miss Betty Cook, Mrs. Robert Parrett, Mrs. John Forsythe, Mrs. Walter Fults, Mrs. Walter Beatty, Miss Ann Story, Mrs. Tom Bush, Mrs. O. W. Woodyard, Mrs. Robert Craig, Mrs. Charles Hire, Mrs. Clarence Hayes, Mrs. G. B. Vance, and Miss Amelia Pensyl.

Lecture Given Sunday On Christian Science

A free public lecture on Christian Science, under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Washington C. H. was given in the Washington High School Auditorium on Sunday afternoon, May 24, by Elizabeth McArthur Thomson, C.S.B., of St. Louis, Mo. a member of the Board of Lectureship, of The Mother Church, in Boston, Massachusetts.

The lecturer was introduced by Mrs. Freda M. Browne who spoke a message of welcome to those attending.

The subject of Mrs. Thomson's address was "Christian Science: Its Healing Power" and in part is as follows:

The question, What is Truth, and where may it be found? comes to us today in many interesting forms. The constant inquiry into the cause and cure of war, accident, sin, sickness, and death indicates humanity's desire to discover the facts regarding human conditions, and to establish a successful method of healing. To some, the human effort to find Truth, the truth about man and the universe, may appear only as wishful thinking. But wiser men and women will view all honest search throughout the fields of science, theology, and medicine with due respect for both the work and the worker. Everyone is interested in healing. But how to heal and be healed, that is a question still being asked by many persons even after centuries of exploration, analysis, and experimentation along practically every material course.

Christian Science, the perfect Science of living, reveals that God in His inspired Word has provided the perfect answer to every human question, together with the only permanent method of cure. Awaiting the time when all mankind will recognize the truth of being and be healed, true Scientists will go on faithfully working, without fear or discouragement, without acceptance of the thought of failure or defeat.

The Certainty of the Word Christ Jesus, the greatest thinker and worker of all times, as he stood accused of the Jews, and awaited Pilate's question, "What is truth?" made probably the greatest proclamation of healing of his or any age. Hear his words and consider their import: "To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth." Christian Science has appeared in this age to reveal the truth to which Jesus referred. And from its study and practice we learn that the end of Jesus' work was the demonstration of harmonious, eternal life; and that the cause for which he came, his mission in the so-called human experience, was the proof of man's complete unity with and expression of the one God who is Love.

Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer, Founder, and Leader of Christian Science, loved God above all else. A most intelligent and spiritually-minded person from early youth, Mrs. Eddy kept up her search for the ultimate cause of all things, and looked hopefully for the permanent cure of human ills.

After years of study and research, Mrs. Eddy saw with spiritual clarity the underlying Principle and rule of scientific being, saw Truth as it is, with its healing power.

Aided by God alone, Mrs. Eddy was able to write the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures." It is the textbook which provides for all mankind a spiritual, practical pattern and method of Christianly scientific teaching and healing.

Jesus prayed that God's kingdom, the manifestation of divine power, would be realized here on earth as in heaven. Christian Science proves that the reign of absolute good is at hand, and that God's power can be demonstrated. Mrs. Eddy has given to the world its greatest present-day blessing. And some day the whole world will give back to her genuine gratitude for the work she has has become the crucial sector of war in the Orient.

Furthering the successes of last week in the face of a Chinese resistance which could check or turn the enemy back only isolated actions, the Japanese in Chekiang province carried their drive dangerously near Kihwa, important communications center and provincial capital.

Outnumbered by Japs

The Chinese, estimating the enemy's strength at 100,000 men, acknowledged his proximity to Kihwa and a Tokyo report said that the Japanese actually were storming the city.

The Chekiang drive, carried to its logical end, would impair the long-range prospect of setting up forward bases in China for a direct air offensive against Japan by the United Nations. The Japanese offensive also bore the earmarks of an all-out attempt to force the Chungking government to its knees.

Australia Defended

In the Australian theater, the long-range duel between the Japanese in their island bases facing Australia on the north and American - Australian airmen continued over the week end.

On Saturday the Allies bombed Amboina in the Dutch East Indies—a 1,300-mile roundtrip—and either by luck or suicide a Japanese plane, winged by anti-aircraft fire, struck an Allied vessel amidstships, several hundred miles off Australia, and set her afire.

An Allied destroyer administered the coup de grace with its guns after removing 100 survivors, many injured.

Elsewhere in War

Elsewhere the world conflict was marked by unconfirmed reports and hints of United States naval losses, a simmer of English laborite discontent with the Churchill government and German dissatisfaction with Pierre Laval over his progress toward final French-German collaboration.

Mexico, meanwhile, moved steadily toward a formal declaration of war on the Axis, expected this week in an extraordinary session of congress.

Rome attempted to back up its claims of last week that a United States battleship of the Maryland class had been sunk by an Italian submarine off the Brazilian coast. The Italians declared that a group of seamen being brought to shore after rescue at sea were survivors from the battleship.

It was known that 53 seamen from some ship had been rescued by an Argentine merchant vessel in that region but the vessel they came from was not identified.

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, May 25—(P)—Corn prices rose as much as ½ cent at times today due to good industrial demand and prospects of increased use of grain for alcohol manufacture but wheat declined correspondingly as a result of slight upward revision of crop estimates.

Although hedging sales against almost 200,000 bushels of corn booked to arrive here from country points reduced the gains, this selling was no more than enough to offset good demand credited to processors and shippers.

Corn closed unchanged to ½c higher compared with Saturday, July 88c, Sept. 90½-¼c; wheat ¾c lower, July 1.20½-½c, Sept. 1.22½-¾c; oats unchanged to ½c off; soybeans ½-¾c lower; rye ½-¾c down.

Soybean losses amounted to more than a cent at times, with the market weakened by lagging meal demand.

WIDE COVERAGE IS PLANNED BY YOUTH PROGRAM

War-time Makes It Essential Says Chairman of YM-YW Campaign

With the campaign to raise $2,500 for the combined YMCA-YWCA focusing attention on the youth of Washington C. H. and Fayette County, those charged with much of the responsibility of guiding the boys and girls along safer paths disclose that the youth recreational program for this community is not only varied but also has a wide coverage with an appeal from nearly every point of view.

The YM-YW and the city recreation department, under the direction of Mrs. Tom Bush, form the foundation upon which this program is built. Although finances and wartime admittedly somewhat becloud the future, the youth leaders have expressed confidence that, in spite of the abnormal tribulations of these times of social and economic stress, the people will not permit the program to sag or lapse if that possibly can be avoided. So, they are going ahead with their plans—plans they say are "bigger and better than ever" but to be carried out at much less expense than in normal times—for the coming year.

Just how far these plans go and how much the youth benefit, it was emphasized, depend to a large extent on the public response to the YM-YW appeal for operating funds, the $2,500 now sought.

If the fund is raised, there will be a full program of activities, tried and proven, centering at Wilson Field in Cherry Hill for the boys and men of the city and county; for the girls and women, there will be a program of activities at Gardner Park in Sunnyside; at the Rose Avenue and Eastside school grounds there will be a program for still others. The YM-YW will have charge of the program at Wilson Field under the direction of Thomas Doyle and at Gardner Park under the direction of Miss Marjorie Evans. They are both members of the Washington C. H. High School faculty. The Rose Avenue and Eastside school programs will be under the supervision of Mrs. Bush and carried on by the city recreation department, which has offices on the second floor of the City Hall and gets much of its financial support from the federal government.

These youth programs are more important now than at any time in years. W. H. Hilty, superintendent of the county school system and general chairman of the YM-YW campaign said as he pointed out significantly that many parents are now in war industries and would otherwise have to leave their children to their own devices. Recreation will have to be "localized" more now than in the past, he declared, because of the tire, automobile and impending gasoline rationing.

Supt. Hilty said that people generally are aware of the responsibility the community has for its youth, particularly in "the abnormal times we are now experiencing," and he added that indications now are that this larger and more inclusive youth program is winning approval in an unprecedented manner.

While the proposed program is to begin presently it is more extensive than heretofore, the campaign chairman said, the cost will be nominal and below the expenditures of other years. The continuous YM-YW program, he continued, is expanding its activities with resources smaller than heretofore.

FIREMEN SUMMONED WHEN TAR IGNITES

Two Workmen Are Painfully Scorched by Flames

Firemen were called to the G. D. Baker tar and road oil plant on South Main Street at 9:30 Monday morning, where two vats of tar had become too hot and ignited.

Flames and dense smoke were pouring up from the burning tar, necessitating use of fog nozzles on the booster line and also a regular line to extinguish the flames.

Firemen suffered from the intense heat, and Fred Collins and Weaver Johns, employees, sustained painful burns.

Damage was estimated at $100 to $150.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR N. B. HALL

Many relatives and friends gathered at the Hook Funeral Home Saturday afternoon to pay tribute to N. B. Hall when funeral services were held at two o'clock. There was a wealth of flowers from many sources to bespeak their silent message of respect and farewell.

Services were conducted by Rev. J. L. McWilliams, of Clinton County, a former pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of this city and Dr. J. Roby Oldham, present pastor, the former delivering the funeral discourse and the latter offering prayer and reading the obituary of the deceased.

Palbearers were James Ducey, G. E. Bidwell, David Glass, Carl Mallow, Floyd Elliott and Forest F. Tipton.

Burial was made in the family lot in Washington Cemetery.

MRS. GERTRUDE FREICE IS PAID FINAL TRIBUTE

Friends and relatives of Mrs. Gertrude E. Freice gathered at the Church of Christ on North North Street at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon to pay their final tributes to her at funeral services conducted by Rev. Fred I. Gardner, the church pastor. Flowers banked the casket as mute evidence of the esteem in which she was held.

Rev. Gardner offered prayer, read from the Scriptures and closed his memoir with "Crossing the Bar". The choir, accompanied by Miss Christine Switzer, sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Just as We Are."

Burial was in the New Holland Cemetery in charge of the Klever Funeral Home with Warren, Elbert, William and Herbert Dennis, Earl Morris and Buddie Cook acting as the pallbearers.

FOOT CRUSHED UNDER TRAILER HAULING ROLLER

Donald Scott, State Highway Employ, Is Injured Seriously

Donald Scott, employee of the State Highway Department in Fayette County, was injured seriously, Saturday afternoon, when a heavy trailer, hauling a 10-ton roller, passed over his left foot while he was walking beside the truck on the Prairie Road a few miles north of Washington C. H.

His foot was caught under the front wheel of the trailer, doubled under, and the bones so badly crushed that it was first believed amputation might be necessary.

The fact that the road was soft probably prevented still more serious injuries, as the tires of the trailer were solid rubber.

He was brought to the office of Dr. J. H. Persinger, given treatment, and then removed to Grant Hospital, Columbus, where word Monday indicated that the foot would be saved, although restoring the bone structures would require time.

Scott has been with the State Highway maintenance crew in Fayette County for a number of years, and his injury is the most serious accident that has befallen a workman of the crew in many years.

CHURCH FILLED FOR PATRIOTIC SERVICE SUNDAY

Impressive Sermon Delivered At Grace Church by Rev. Parkin

Grace Methodist Church was filled, Sunday morning, for the annual memorial sermon which was delivered by Rev. George B. Parkin, pastor of the church, the various local patriotic organizations attending in a body and occupying reserved seats.

The church was beautifully decorated with spring flowers and the national colors. The choir, under direction of Ralph Lloyd, furnished special music for the event.

"What Are We Fighting For," was the theme of an impressive sermon delivered by Rev. Parkin, who spoke of the brave men who have laid down their lives in various wars in defense of home and country.

Rev. Parkin declared that first of all we are fighting for victory and for the preservation of freedom and our democratic interests and ways of living.

He also said that we are fighting for a world where we are fighting for a world where we can live together as nations, races, classes and individuals, in freedom, co-operation and peace.

"We are realizing as never before that man does not live by bread alone, but by faith and hope," he said.

In conclusion he declared that from the war must come mutual understanding, cooperation, honor, truth and justice.

Fifty American Legionnaires, most of whom had served with the American forces overseas in World War No. 1, sat tensely in half dozen pews in the center section of the church as Rev. Parkin paid tribute to their buddies who had given their lives fighting for the same freedom America is now fighting for.

They had met at the Legion Hall at 10 A. M. and marched to the church, led by Alton Smalley and Charles Morgan carrying the American flag and the banner of the American Legion, followed by the Post commander, Howard D. Fogle and the adjutant, R. Burris Tharp. At the church they filed into the pews reserved for them. The flags were placed in standards just outside the chancel rail.
